Five Who Signed for New Jersey Played Major Role in Nation's Move for Independence

When the Second Continental Congress reconvened in Philadelphia on July 1, 200 years ago today, it was in the hope that enough support could be rallied from the middle colonies. New Jersey included, to pass the resolution for independence brought to the floor on June 7 by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia.

On June 10, with seven colonies favoring the resolution, five opposed and one abstaining — hardly a united front to present to the rest of the world — the delegates postponed for three weeks further consideration of the Lee resolution. By coincidence, the third New Jersey Provincial Congress composed of members committed to independence began its session June 10. In the ensuing three weeks it ousted the colony's Royalist governor, William Franklin, elected five new delegates to the Continental Congress, empowering them to vote for independence, and drew up a new state constitution.

The "five independent souls," as John Adams called them, were an unusually diverse group. They were Richard Stockton of Princeton, an outstanding lawyer and former member of the governor's council, the Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, the fiery president of the College of New Jersey, later Princeton University; John Hart, a Hopewell farmer with little education; Abraham Clark of Elizabeth, a former sheriff and self-styled Poor Man's Counsellor, and Francis Hopkinson, a poet and satirist, musician and customs collector from Bordentown.

Each had been a member of one or more of the many committees that sprang up in response to various acts upper house of the legislature, he wrote a communication to Lord Dartmouth in England entitled "An Expedient for the Settlement of the American Disputes," warning that immediate measures must be taken to understand the colonial position or there would be "an obstinate, awful and tremendous war."

Although born in Scotland, Witherspoon entered into the American cause with great zeal, writing pamphlets, serving on committees of correspondence and attending all provincial congresses, first as an observer and later as a delegate.

"Honest John Hart" was greatly respected in Hopewell for his industriousness and integrity, as well as his considerable property in grist, saw and fulling mills. First named to the New Jersey Assembly in 1761 he was elected thereafter for ten years. He opposed the Stamp Act and favored sending a message to King George of England saying that the right to tax the colonies lay with the colonists themselves.

Hart was appointed to his local committee of correspondence and the New Jersey Committee of Safety and was elected to the First Provincial Congress of New Jersey. He continued in that body and was vice-president just before he was chosen on June 22 to be one of the five who would head for the final showdown in Philadelphia.

of Parliament intended to increase the revenue from the colonies and to exert greater control over them. Richard Stockton was involved in the controversy concerning the quartering of troops and the Stamp Act. While a member of the governor's council, the

Years of Controversy Climaxed by McPherson's Resignation As School Superintendent After $45,000 Settlement Is Made

The long-running and often bitter feud between the Princeton Regional School Board and the school superintendent, Philip E. McPherson, has drawn to a quiet conclusion. Three years ago, shortly after Dr. McPherson made two controversial recommendations to the board for the positions of high school principal and middle school principal, the board requested Dr. McPherson's resignation. At a special meeting Monday night the superintendent finally offered it.

The resignation of Dr. McPherson, who had tenure, came after several months of negotiations between lawyers representing him and the board. The key to the settlement was a payment of $45,000 by the board to the superintendent. In accepting that payment, Dr. McPherson agreed to refrain from taking any legal action against the board.

On Friday of last week the agreement was reached and a special meeting was called for Monday night at the Valley Road School. Board president Dietrich Meyerhofer convened the meeting at 8, and then adjourned it to 8:15 — only two board members and a handful of spectators were present. At 8:15 he hammered the gavel again and announced the revised meeting schedule and then turned to the agenda: "The first item, personnel, a special item. Dr. McPherson."

The superintendent immediately began reading from a prepared statement: "My decision to resign this spring is something I have been considering for some time. The decision is based on a set of personal considerations having far more to do with my whole life over time than with the circumstances of my job during the last year or so."

"After a day in the office tomorrow, I will conclude my work here as superintendent and leave for a vacation in Maine."

Stay in Princeton. "My family and I currently plan to continue to live in Princeton, the town in which we have grown up together these last nine years and about which we care a great deal. In the immediate future, I will be a homemaker, attending to a variety of personal matters while considering opportunities for further education and new employment, probably in the field of education."

After Dr. McPherson concluded his statement, in which he alluded to some of the divisions between him and the board, Dr. Meyerhofer read the board's resolution. "Despite the aforesaid differences," the resolution read in part, "the board appreciates the ability, industry and complete dedication which Dr. McPherson has exhibited in performing his duties as superintendent over the past nine years."

Referring to the $45,000 termination settlement, the resolution pointed out that "Dr. McPherson has received no sabbatical or other extended leave, has been entitled to some time off which he has not taken, and has not been given an increase in salary for the past three years." (His salary is $31,000.)

The resolution to accept the superintendent's resignation, effective August 1, was passed by a 7-0 vote. Mrs. Hannah Fox and Mrs. Joan Doig were absent.

Pension Protected. Dr. Meyerhofer then read a prepared statement from the board, intended in large part to explain how the $45,000 settlement was determined. A major consideration was the fact that Dr. McPherson had accrued 13 years toward the vesting of his retirement fund, two short of the necessary total. "The amount necessary to purchase vesting of pension benefits already earned by Dr. McPherson was $40,000," the statement read in part. "The board felt it was only fair to protect the amount already accrued on Dr. McPherson's behalf and earned by his years of service."

The board asserted that "the amount authorized by this resolution will be drawn from reserves in the current 1975-'76 budget and will not affect present programs and operations."

After answering questions from the press and the public, who numbered less than 25 for this final round of action, the superintendent shook hands with the board president and left the room. The board quickly disposed of the remainder of its agenda and then convened in executive session to consider whom it might appoint as interim superintendent and how a search process for a new superintendent might be organized.

Dr. Meyerhofer indicated later that the board would probably search first for an acting superintendent. "It could very well be someone from inside the school system who has the ability to handle the job on a caretaker basis," he said. "That person would not necessarily apply or be considered for the permanent position."

Tuesday Meetings. The board will advertise within the school system for applications for the acting position, which it hopes to fill by August 1. Ronald Novak, the business administrator, already has been designated to handle Dr. McPherson's duties while he is on vacation.

The board tentatively planned to meet each Tuesday in July, at 8 in the Valley Road School, to handle these and other matters. One matter to resolve is the procedure for selection of a permanent superintendent. Asked how the board would solicit or respond to community input, Dr. Meyerhofer replied: "There is some difference on the board as to how far we should go in that direction — particularly in regard to citizens' committees."

"We will have to seek advice from other districts that have been through the process," he said, "and there are plenty around."

Not even Pollyanna would expect the disputes among and between school board members, staff, and parents to cease in the absence of Dr. McPherson. The next major battle seems likely to be the method of selection and the choice of his successor. But

Dr. McPherson's resignation, which came just days after he had again stated publicly that he had no intention of resigning, raised the more immediate question of what went wrong in his once-bright career at Princeton.

'Not Unhappy.' Dr. McPherson stated at the meeting that he was not resigning as a result of any direct pressure from the board. Neither the recent report of consultant Arthur G. Martin, contracted by the board without the approval or request of the superintendent, nor the report of the New Jersey School Boards Association issued earlier this year had a causal relationship to his action.

"If I were going to leave under pressure," Dr. McPherson stated, "I would have left a long time ago. I don't want to be cocky but the reasons I'm leaving now have more to do with personal matters that aren't the kind of thing I would discuss in public. It's not an unhappy decision for me."

Friends of the superintendent point out that his wife, Judy, a nurse, is just completing the master's program in the University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. "It's time for Judy to start her career," said one family friend, in reference to Dr. McPherson's statement that he would be a "homemaker" in the near future. The McPhersons have three children in the Princeton system, one each in high school, middle school, and elementary school.

The issues over which he and the board disagreed, Dr. McPherson maintained, were all out in the open. "I don't believe that there was any significant issue on which I haven't spoken out. I did that intentionally. The board has dealt with these issues, if you've gone to board meetings, if you read the newspaper accounts of them — if you can read between the lines where some of us were trying to be discreet, you will find that it's all there. There is nothing else."

Bright and Able. Dr. McPherson, a graduate of the University of Rochester who received his doctorate at Harvard, came to Princeton as a bright and able 30-year-old who had been serving as an assistant superintendent in the Pittsburgh, Pa., school system.

He was the first permanent superintendent of the then new Princeton Regional School System. He soon developed a reputation among some of his teachers as a highly qualified and dedicated professional. "His client was always the child," recalls one teacher. "When we would get into battles over programs and strategies and started playing politics against each other, he would always ask what course of action would benefit the student."

Another teacher, Anne Johnston, observed that "every recommendation McPherson made was backed up with sound educational reasons. It was never a question of making a political

THE CLARKE HOUSE: A Bicentennial Tour of the Princeton Battlefield to be led by Col. Kemble Widmer Sunday at 2 is expected to include this relurbished historic site, where General Mercer died after the Battle of Princeton. (Whitall Photo)

TOPICS

Of The Town

John Adams observed that the birth of the nation ought to be "solemnized" by later generations of grateful Americans "with pomp and here will launch the long parade, with shows, games, Bicentennial weekend on sports, gun, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other." Along with Americans everywhere, Princeton area residents will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence with most, if not all, of his suggestions.

Thursday at Palmer Stadium. The gates to the Stadium will open at 7:30 instead of at 8 as previously announced.

Two drum and bugle corps, the Hamilton Black Watch and the Manville Raiders, will be on hand to supply "pomp and parade," and the Hamilton Black Watch will also give a 15-minute precision drill ("shows, games, sports").

As soon as it is suitably dark, Mrs. Helen Gronostowski will sing the National Anthem, and the fireworks will begin. There will be a separate entrance to Palmer Stadium for those who have purchased their tickets in advance, and the Jaycees will sell tickets at a table in Palmer Square Thursday at noon. Tickets are a Bicentennial bargain at $1 apiece, with children under 12 free if accompanied by an adult.

Bulk rate tickets, 100 for $80, are available by calling Ellen Hodges at the Chamber of Commerce, 921-7676. There is no charge for parking, and patriotic persons who would like to volunteer their help in ticket-taking or traffic direction are urged to call Ed Salkind of the Jaycees at 921-3092.

Signers to be Honored. Three bronze plaques will be unveiled by the Historical Society on Sunday on the homes of two signers of the Declaration of Independence and on the birthplace of one of the signers. Governor Byrne will accept the plaque at Morven, home of Richard Stockton, at 9 a.m. at a brief ceremony. Then at 10:30 at MacLean House on the University campus next to the Nassau Presbyterian Church, Provost Albert Rees will unveil the plaque on the home of John Witherspoon during his early years as president of Princeton University.

At noon there will be another unveiling ceremony at the Barracks, 32 Edgehill Street, thought to be the birthplace of Richard Stockton. Maps prepared by the Historical Society showing the location of all the houses which have been or will be marked with plaques will be available Sunday at the Visitors' Center on University Place for $1. Mrs. Alma Fields has been in charge of this project for the Historical Society.

The sound of bells ringing Sunday at 2 as part of the nation-wide celebration will also signal the start of a tour of the Princeton Battlefield, rain or shine. Before the tour the Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society will raise the "Blue Banner," Washington's headquarters flag at the Battle of Princeton, on the Battlefield flagpole. The tour will be conducted by Col. Kemble Widmer, an expert on the details of the battle, and will cover the major events of that battle. It will last about an hour, and

Col. Widmer will then be available for questions.

The Society hopes to have the Clarke House and the Interpretive Center in the Carriage Shed of Clarke House open to the public on that day. Along with the development and landscaping of the Battlefield Park, the refurbishing of the Clarke House and the creation of the Interpretive Center have been the primary objectives of the Society, which has over 100 active members.

They have been greatly aided in their efforts by the interest and labors of many people over the past several years. It is their hope that the Battlefield Park (owned by the State) will be a beautiful and lasting memorial to the historically important events that took place on January 3, 1777.

Fireworks Parking Bao

Because of the anticipated traffic that the fireworks display in Palmer Stadium will generate, Township police will invoke emergency no-parking on three streets near the stadium.

No parking will be allowed from 7 p.m. Thursday on both sides of FitzRandolph from Western Way to Faculty; Broadmead from Western Way to Hartley and Western Way from FitzRandolph to Harrison.

Mayor Herman Hansler and Dr. P.J. Hills Sr., adjutant of the Mitchell Davis Post 182 American Legion, will speak.

In Pennington the main celebration will take place on Monday when children's games and competitions begin at 4 at the grammar school at the corner of Main and Curliss. There will be a bring-your-own basket picnic at 5:30 at the school (inside the cafeteria if it rains). Girl scouts will sell hot dogs and sodas, and there will be a judging of Bicentennial costumes with awards for homespun and fancy categories.

There will be separate prizes for preschool youngster, six to 16 year olds and adults, with a special award for a general patriotic or historical entry. The day will close with a Come One, Come All celebration of street dancing behind the school with the Newt Stewart Band.

The musical "1776" will be staged by two different groups over the weekend. The Somerset Valley Players will perform the work free in its traveling trailer at the Montgomery High School Thursday at 7. Bring chairs, blankets and refreshments.

The musical will also be offered at Washington Crossing State Park in the open air theatre by Mercer County's Olde Towne Players Thursday through Monday at 8:30. Admission is $2.50; students under 12, $1, and there are no reserved seats.

REVOLUTION IS THEME

Of Historical Society Exhibit. "Princeton, Turning Point of the Revolution" is the theme of the Historical Society's current Bicentennial Exhibit. Princeton's part in the Revolution is depicted in 10 dioramas, beginning with Paul Revere's ride past Bainbridge House on his way to Philadelphia.

The British sweep through New Jersey late in 1776 on their way to the Delaware River is demonstrated in the pillaging of Morven and the occupation of Hudibras Tavern. The turning point of the Battle of Princeton is shown in the largest diorama, with flanking scenes showing the destruction of Stony Brook

The Man indeed does have fair winds (and sunny skies) in mind for Sunday, when Bicentennial activity will reach its peak. If everything goes right, he reports, the entire weekend may be marked by weather as glorious as the Fourth can be.

Before that, it will be necessary to move out the heat and humidity which have dominated the early part of the week. It will take some doing, with Thursday (marked for fireworks in the Stadium) something of a question mark. Thereafter, it is all expected to be distinctly enjoyable.

State Civil Rights Division Finds Jurisdiction Is Lacking In Charge of Discrimination by Trotman Against Golf Club

The charge of racial discrimination which Marvin Trotman, a guidance counselor and basketball coach at Princeton High School, brought against Springdale Golf Club when his membership application was rejected, will not receive further consideration from the State Division of Civil Rights.

The club has been notified through its attorney, Richard J. Casey, that the Division has determined that the complaint is not within the jurisdiction of the law against discrimination. While the letter from the Division to the club did not specify further on its reasoning for the action, it supports the club's original contention that no grounds for complaint existed because Springdale is privately owned and operated.

The letter to Mr. Casey said that the Civil Rights Division has closed its file on the Trotman case. It bore the signature of Margaret Bass, chief of the Division's Bureau of Enforcement for the southern half of New Jersey.

The 75-year old club and its 18-hole course stand on land owned by Princeton University but the membership maintains the property and pays the taxes. Direction of the club is in the hands of a 12-man board of governors who reach their decisions independently, maintaining Springdale's financial structure and determining its membership.

When the charge of discrimination on Mr. Trotman's behalf was made against the club, it was extended to implicate the University, inasmuch as it holds title to the property after original members so deeded it many years ago.

Mr. Trotman's application for membership came before Springdale's board in early 1974. It was more than half a year later that the Rev. Blane Aldridge, an assistant minister at the Nassau Presbyterian Church who had decision. He was willing to do what he thought was right regardless of the consequences."

His role as a professional leader, Dr. McPherson believes now, may have been an early source of trouble with the board. "The superintendent under state law is both a member of the board and also a teaching professional. When push came to shove I almost always made a choice on the basis of my professional leadership role," he said. Some members of the board, he added, have felt that the superintendent should be a management executive, working for the board, determining what it wants done and then getting it done.

Racial Incident. Later, Dr. McPherson became involved in several controversies that identified him as a liberal in a conservative-liberal split among board members and the community at large. "A black boy was thrown off the football team and expelled from school. He appealed to me and I reinstated him," Dr. McPherson recalled. "The town was in turmoil. Rocks were thrown through my windows at home."

Dr. McPherson also supported a girl who wanted to wear slacks she had made in home economics class to school, a violation of the existing dress code. He sided with a Jewish student who objected to the decoration of the school with Christmas displays.

In the spring of 1973 Dr. McPherson recommended the appointment of George Petrillo as high school principal and Virginia Euell as middle school principal. "Many liberals thought of Petrillo as a white conservative who would turn the high school into a prison. Conservatives thought that Euell (a black) would be too permissive in the middle school," the superintendent said.

Four board members voted for Mr. Petrillo and four voted against him. Those people exactly reversed their votes in considering Miss Euell. The appointments were carried only because Mrs. Fox supported Dr. McPherson's choices, but, as he added, "I ended up with only one member on the board who was not fairly angry with me."

"Virtually No Friends." Shortly thereafter he received the first request for his resignation. Then his favor among liberals diminished further when he withdrew support for the Learning Community, an educational innovation originally supported by the superintendent. "I profess to having courted the liberals on that," he said, "but then I began to mature as a person - if you'll pardon me for getting personal. I had serious questions about the Learning Community."

As one teacher described the situation, "McPherson found himself in a difficult situation. He was virtually without friends."

Dr. McPherson said he is virtually certain to return to an educational position of some sort. "I've weighed some offers from industry, but I like the pulse, the action of schools."

"In fact, I've enjoyed working here in Princeton the last few years far more than people think. It's been a pressure cooker, but people who want to be superintendents enjoy that atmosphere."

Bridge and the use of Quaker Meeting House as a hospital.

The last two dioramas show Nassau Hall as the seat of the Government in 1783, with the Continental Congress in session, and Rockingham where Washington stayed during part of this period. The "Alarm - Beacon" model brings to light a little known aspect of local history, as does the "Devil's Cave."

The student members who prepared the models and built and painted the dioramas under the direction of Dominic Nogare are John Ager, Bill Baxter, Julie Bolick, Marion Burkhalter, Cindy Cochran, Tim Cochran, Sally Drake, Clare Flesch, Morley Frank, Mary Ann Gallagher, Barbara Glassman, Dudley Johnson, Jr., Andy Longman, Bill Ogilvie, Michael Patrick, Tom Schreier, Sharon Staudinger, Donald Strizki, Garret Vreeland, Allan Weidenhauser, and Noel Zahler. Dale Johnson of the exhibits committee, and Nancy Frank also participated in the design and execution of this visual history exhibit.

MAYOR CAWLEY PLEADED

By Consultant's Report. One matter certain to be faced by Philip McPherson's successor as superintendent of schools will be the district's appeal of the austerity budget imposed on the system by the Borough and Township. When voters turned down the school budget earlier this year, the two municipalities exercised their power in establishing another budget, $316,000 less than the original.

The school board has appealed that budget. The appeal has been taken to a county conciliation conference and is expected to be heard as early as August by the State Department of Education.

Borough Mayor Robert Cawley, speaking at his weekly press conference, was optimistic that the municipalities' budget trimming would be upheld by the Department of Education. The source of his optimism was the report of the board's outside consultant, Arthur G. Martin.

"I was pleased to note the report," said the mayor, "since he also cited a need to reduce administrative expenses and personnel. The fact that we picked different areas in which to cut than he did underscores the difficulty governing bodies have in making these budget determinations. But we also had data indicating that administrative costs were out of line."

"I assume that the study will be supportive of our action."

Action Unclear. Mr. Martin's report, which was commissioned largely because of the school board's lack of confidence in Dr. McPherson, recommended the elimination of two positions, the director of staff services and the personnel administrator, and a shift in responsibilities of the assistant superintendent.

The municipalities had recommended cutting the personnel administrator and two of the four assistant principals at the high school. The consultant maintained that all four assistant principal positions are needed.

Dr. McPherson, in turn, had strongly criticized the consultant's report, partly because it seemed to reach conclusions already drawn by the board. The two positions recommended for elimination are ones already under the school board's axe, the superintendent noted.

What action the school board would take in implementing the consultant's recommendations, if any, was unclear in the aftermath of Dr. McPherson's resignation. The report had been listed on the agenda for this Tuesday night's meeting, but the board doubted that it would be considered at that time.

Difficult Time. Mayor Cawley learned of the resignation during his press conference. "I feel very sorry for the man," he said, "but it's probably a good thing for the town."

The superintendent led the school through a difficult time, the mayor added. "Both the school merger and Phil have been blamed unfairly for some of the things that happened," he said. "In the time he was superintendent there was a dramatic increase in teacher salaries, and that was a nationwide trend. There was also an increase in freedom among kids and a decrease in discipline -- also a nationwide trend."

"Those are the issues that have really bugged people in town," the mayor added.

APARTMENT LOOTED

Items Worth $900 Taken. Articles valued at $900 were stolen Sunday from a Stanworth apartment.

Taken, police said, were a Russian ikon ($350); three Japanese sword handles; a silver wine bottle and silver ash tray with old Spanish coins, each valued at $150; and a silver reproduction of a Greek vase ($100). Entry was gained through an unlocked rear window between 8:35 and 11:29 p.m.

A stereo amplifier and turntable (combined value $310) were stolen from a room in the Graduate College last week after the thief gained entrance through a window on the west side, and a five-inch $125 portable television set and tennis bag were stolen from the same building a day later. Entry in that burglary was through an open window on the north side.

On Thursday, a tape recorder valued at $150 was taken from the Graduate College. Again, an open window was used.

There were two more thefts of CB radios. A Princeton University student lost a CB valued at $175, taken Friday from his car parked in a lot off Roper Lane, and a Township resident lost a 23-channel CB which was removed from his car in the Playhouse lot. A vent window had been popped out to gain entry, police said. Also taken was a wallet containing credit cards.

Two bicycle thefts joined the theft list on the Borough police docket.

An unlocked, 10-speed model valued at $70 was stolen from the rear of a home on Prospect Avenue, while a girl's 3-speed bike valued at $100 was stolen from a home on FitzRandolph.

Locker Loss. An East Windsor resident reported the theft Monday night of his wallet from a YMCA locker. It contained $20 and credit cards.

A woman's purse containing $17 and a University Store credit card was taken Friday from a Dickinson Street apartment. Entry was by way of a window, police said.

While in the Coin Wash on Nassau Street last week, a Township resident had her wallet, containing $5, credit cards and several blank checks stolen. Four days later, on Monday, Lawrence Township police arrested Larry Miller and Robin Smith of Princeton and charged them with possession of stolen property.

They had allegedly tried to use the stolen credit card in a Lawrence Township store, Borough police said.

Attempted Entry. There was an attempted entry Friday in a Stanworth apartment.

Ptl. David Alston, answering a call to investigate two suspicious men, found that an apartment had been entered and a television set moved from its original position to a nearby window.

One suspect was described as 5-7, medium build, with short hair, dark trousers and a yellow T-shirt. Police had no description on the second suspect.

2 WINDSHIELDS SMASHED

By Vandals. Borough police report that vandals last week smashed the windshields of two parked cars.

A Trenton resident told police that the windshield of his 1974 car was shattered Sunday while it was parked between 2:30 and 5 p.m. on John Street. The windshield of a car of a Lawrenceville resident was smashed while it was parked in the Tulane West yard.

CANDIDATES SOUGHT

For Medvin Vacancy. The Democratic municipal committee in the Borough continues to stress party unity and cooperation with both Borough Council and the Princeton Community Democratic Organization. Dorothy Soper, who successfully ran for the municipal chairmanship stressing just such cooperation, this week issued a statement outlining the organization's search process for a candidate to run for the onexpired portion of Murray Medvin's term on Borough Council.

The statement noted that the discussions about a candidate are being held by representatives of all three groups, and that these same representatives also were discussing "Council's prerogative to make a temporary appointment to fill the vacancy until the election."

The fear of some Democrats has been that the municipal committee would pick one candidate to run in November, while Council was appointing another person to serve until the election. The result in that case could be a weaker showing in the election against the Republicans. Mrs. Soper and some representatives of the PCDO and Council have indicated their hope to avoid that circumstance.

Persons interested in being considered for the November election, Mrs. Soper announced, are asked to contact Bruce Finnie, at 921-3785, or John Huntton, at 924-6671. Interviews will begin soon.

SENIORS TO SEE BURNS

At Garden State Center. The Princeton Recreation Department will sponsor a bus trip Wednesday, July 7, to the Garden State Arts Center to see a special performance with George Burns and Carol Channing. All Princeton residents age 60 and over are invited to attend the free performance.

There are approximately 40 tickets still available. The bus will leave from Community Park at noon and from Spruce Circle at 12:15. Call 921-9480 for reservations.

PISTOL HONORS WON

By Township Patrolman. "Some people are natural golfers... I happen to be a pretty good shooter. It just comes naturally," explained Township Ptl. James Vandermark after he won top individual honors for the second time in three years at the fifth annual Trenton Pistol Meet Sunday at the Trenton Police Pistol Range on Duck Island.

The event, open to members of police and security agencies and civilians, drew approximately 200 entrants from 15 police agencies within a 50-mile radius of Trenton. In the Police Practical Pistol Course, Ptl. Vandermark scored 250 out of a possible 250, including 31 Xs in the silhouette area of the upright target—a smaller area used to break ties.

a drink and closed and locked the door.

The police investigation revealed that the thief had punched a hole in a screen door and entered the house before the main door had been locked. The pocketbook was later found outside on the grass next to a driveway with the three wallets missing.

In the second part of the competition, the FBI Tactical Revolver Course, Ptl. Vandermark scored 299 out of a possible 300, including 47 Xs. Both phases are timed events but the latter is more demanding, as the shooter has to fire from six different positions at different distances in less time.

Ptl. Vandermark, a member of the four-man Township team that included Ptl. Anthony Gaylord, Ptl. Renn Kanminski and Det. Anthony Pinelli, used a standard issue .38 caliber pistol with a four-inch barrel.

He and Anthony Caserta of the New Jersey State Police were the only two to attain a perfect score throughout the day, but Vandermark won individual honors on his aggregate score—as he did in 1974 when he and the same three Township shooters captured five of 13 trophies awarded that year. Ptl. Vandermark, that year, has scores of 98.0 and 99.2.

That Ptl. Vandermark was an exceptional shooter was illustrated dramatically in 1971. Then, as a member of the 124th police training class conducted by the New Jersey State Police at its Academy in Sea Girt, he shot 300 out of a possible 300—the first time such a score had even been achieved in the history of the Academy. For that, he was presented with a trophy by the then State Police Superintendent David Kelley.

"Not only is he an outstanding shooter," said Chief Frederic Porter of Ptl. Vandermark, "but he is an excellent teacher as well."

$225 IS STOLEN

From Pizza Star. Last week between 2:40 and 7:45 a.m., $225 was stolen from a cash box inside the Pizza Star in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Police said that a shopping cart was used to smash a three-foot thermopane section of the front door. They identified the owner as Frank Polizzi of Meadow Road.

A stereo receiver valued at $250 and an ornamental wooden box valued at $100 were stolen last week by a thief who entered the home of Vernon Eagle, 52 Birch Avenue, through an unlocked kitchen window.

Ptl. John Clausen investigated the theft which took place between 11 at night and 12:30 a.m. Nothing else was disturbed.

Pocketbook Taken. A pocketbook containing the wallet of Mrs. David Lloyd, 36 Dorann Avenue, and those of her visiting daughters, Mrs. Deborah Torowicz of Interlaken and Mrs. Gail Peterson of Gibbsboro, was stolen last week, causing a loss of about $95 to the victims.

Mrs. Lloyd told police that she had placed her purse in the living room with her daughters' wallets inside about 12:30 in the morning. About an hour later, she awoke, went to the kitchen for

TAYLOR SUIT DENIED

By Newark Jury. A $1 million lawsuit filed by former Princeton University basketball star Brian Taylor against a Penn Central Railroad conductor and five Newark policemen was dismissed early last week by a United States District Court jury in Newark.

Mr. Taylor, now a professional basketball player with the New York Nets, charged that he was falsely arrested, assaulted, and maliciously prosecuted on March 14, 1972, after the conductor asked him to take his feet off the seat in front of him while he was riding the train from Princeton to New York. Mr. Taylor charged that the incident was a violation of his civil rights and that it damaged his bargaining power as a professional athlete.

The jury dismissed all charges.

BIKE PATH LISTED

On Planning Agenda. The Princeton Regional Planning Board meets next Tuesday at 8 in Borough Hall, with a discussion of the proposed bicycle path on Bayard Lane and an application for a small cluster subdivision listed on what appears to be a quiet agenda.

The Planning Board will hear additional comments but is unlikely to make further recommendations on the Bayard Lane bike path, which has drawn opposition from persons living on the west side of Bayard Lane. A path cut in front of their homes, they argue, would destroy much of the plant and tree cover that now shields them from the heavy traffic on that street, which is the path state Route 206 follows through town.

The subdivision is planned by Benedict Yedlin for a plot on Herrontown Road. He was given conditional approval of the subdivision a year ago.

"BLAST" PLANNED

By Rod and Gun Club. The Hit and Miss Rod and Gun Club, 9 Shirley Court, will hold a "Down Home Blast '76" on Sunday at the Elk's grounds in Little Rocky Hill. The event, which has free admission and free parking, is billed as an all-day, all-night long affair and will feature games, prizes, pony rides, disco and dancing.

There will be a whole roast barbecued lamb, corn on the cob, jumbo shrimp, Maryland blue claw crabs and cherrystone clams, as well as the traditional hot dogs, beefburgers, barbecued ribs, and down home chicken. Beer and other refreshments will be available.

PROGRAMS, HOURS SET

By Public Library. The Public Library will be closed all day Saturday and all day Monday for the long Independence Day weekend.

During the remainder of the summer the Library will be open a half day on Saturdays, 9 to 12:30. Weekday hours will remain the same, Monday through Thursday 9 to 9, Friday 9 to 5:30. Library materials may be returned through the Book Drops, whenever the building is closed.

Films have been planned for Wednesdays at 3:30 during the month of July. On July 7 the offering will be "The Case of the Elevator Duck" and "The Cow"; July 14, "Rain-showers" and "Nature's Strangest Creatures"; July 21, "Claude" and "Palle Alone in the World"; and July 25, "Me and You Kangaroo" and "Sheep, Sheep, Sheep." Children under 5 must be accompanied by an adult; tickets are not required.

Three Thursday afternoons in July have been set aside for a series on bicycles. On July 8 the award-winning film "60 Cycles" will be shown. Dick Swann of Kopp's Cycle Shop will discuss bike racing, and a member of the Borough police force will discuss bicycles in connection with the film "Just Like a Car."

Zoning Approved for Hospital's Multi-Million Dollar Addition— Board Denies Sheehan's Request for Expansion of His Building

In proceedings marked by more than the usual amount of caution and deliberation, the Borough Zoning Board approved the Medical Center's request for a conditional use variance that will permit it to add 3½ stories to its J-Wing. The addition, needed to enable the hospital to meet minimum state licensing requirements, would raise the height of that wing bordering Witherspoon Street to six stories.

The caution stemmed from a Superior Court decision last month which reversed the Zoning Board's approval of a hardship variance for Design Interface Corporation, which hopes to construct townhouses on Willow Street, off of Moore Street. The challenger to that decision was 146 Dundas Corporation, owned by Timothy J. Sheehan Jr.

Both Mr. Sheehan and a representative of Design Interface Corporation were present at Thursday night's meeting. Robert M. Dix, lawyer for Design Interface, appeared to explain to the Zoning Board that approval of his client's proposal had been overruled because the judge in the case, George Y. Schoch, had felt the evidence submitted was insufficient. The judge had declined to listen to a tape recording of the proceedings.

Mr. Dix asked that his client be permitted to refile the application "to make a better record which would sustain it on appeal." The better record would consist of a court reporter's written transcript of the hearing. The Zoning Board granted the request. The case could possibly be heard at the Board's next meeting, July 22.

Mr. Sheehan was present to represent his corporation in its request for a minor variance for a building at 357-359 Nassau Street, just a door or two away from the still uncompleted structure at the corner of Markham Road, known as the "Sheehan Building."

Sheehan Denied. Mr. Sheehan's plans called for expansion of the building by the addition of two "ears" to the front and side, and then renovation of the structure to accommodate several two-bedroom apartments. The Zoning Board ruled, however, that Mr. Sheehan had not sufficiently proved a hardship in his application. His request was denied.

So great are the number of cases being appealed to the courts from the Zoning Board that Chairman John L. McGoldrick began the meeting by summarizing the status of the litigation and asked Board Secretary Jean Taube to mail copies of significant court rulings to all members. "It's important for us to get feedback," Mr. McGoldrick said. "When the judge says we're wrong, it's important for us to know why. When we turn out to be right, we ought to know why also."

Mr. McGoldrick reported that in a case involving the Sheehan Building, the court upheld the Zoning Board's denial for requested variances. Two other cases still pending again involve 146 Dundas and Mr. Sheehan. The Zoning Board's approval of variances for the Alchemist and Barrister's planned expansion and renovation and for conversions planned by Dr. I. Andrew Shelpuk and Carl E. Foss have both been challenged in a joint appeal. In his challenges, Mr. Sheehan apparently is attempting to prove his contention that the Zoning Board applies the "hardship" designation in an uneven and inequitable fashion. The case could possibly be heard at the Board's next meeting, July 22.

Taking No Chances. The lawyer representing the Medical Center, John Heher, took no chances in submitting his client's request for a variance covering height, coverage, and set-back requirements. He had the proceedings covered by a court reporter, though he said that he would have done so regardless of the recent court decision involving Design Interface.

With the manual recording machine clicking away in the background, Mr. Heher and John W. Kauffman, executive vice-president of the Medical Center, said that the proposed expansion would add no new beds to the hospital but would create a new surgical suite and recovery room, a new maternity department, and a new coronary care unit and intensive care unit. One-half floor would be a mechanical floor added to the present half-floor already housing mechanical systems at the hospital.

The new addition would be cantilevered out nine feet from the existing building, thereby requiring the variance from the set-back ordinance. What concerned the Zoning Board most, however, was the proposed six stories of the building.

"From a planning standpoint," Mr. Kauffman replied, "even if we had 30 acres of land and we were standing in the middle of it, the most effective expansion would be vertical. We can't provide transportation of our staff with the same efficiency in a horizontal layout." The hospital, of course, is already crowded on its available space and its only recourse for expansion is upward, he pointed out.

Good Until 2000. Mrs. Marjory Claghorn of the Zoning Board asked Mr. Kauffman how soon this addition might be outdated. "This will serve a 400-bed hospital," he replied, "and we don't contemplate going to 400 beds before the year 2000." He added that the addition would create no additional traffic or parking problems.

Albert Hinds voiced the greatest concern about the height. "We've turned down other applications for this reason," he said, adding, "I'm thinking of other plans that might come back to haunt us."

Mr. McGoldrick finally argued that "a hospital is something of a different animal. You just can't spring up hospitals here or there. It leads me to believe, however reluctantly, that this building has to go up." The application was approved, 5-0, with Mr. Hinds voting yes, "with reluctance." Mr. Heher dismissed his court reporter and told him he would not need a transcript -- at least not for now.

The Medical Center now is arranging financing plans for the addition, which is expected to run to millions of dollars. If all goes well with these arrangements, the Center hopes to begin construction of the addition by late this year. It will take about two years to complete.

Mr. Sheehan appeared next, along with his architect, Burton F. Weisbecker. They argued that the structure at 357-359 Nassau Street, a double building sharing a common wall, was so narrow, about 15 feet on either side of the wall, that it provided inadequate space for apartments meeting modern standards of room and design. They proposed to increase the room by taking the stairway out of the center of the building and placing it in an addition to the front of the building, and by constructing an ear, jutting out from one side of the building.

What seemed to carry the board against Mr. Sheehan were three arguments. First Board attorney William von Oehsen ruled that the Board had to consider the case as a hardship request rather than as a minor variance.

Then Board member Alan Chimacoff argued that he could not understand why an apartment with 11-foot rooms constituted a hardship. "Sixty

HOT AIR IN THE ATTIC WASTES AMERICA'S ENERGY AND COSTS YOU MONEY

During the summer months temperatures in the attic can reach as high as 150 degrees. This blanket of heat can penetrate through the best ceiling insulation into the living area below and burden the air conditioning or make a building that is not air conditioned hot and uncomfortable. percent of the brownstones in New York have rooms that narrow and I lived in one for two years," said Mr. Chimacoff, who lives now at 28 Jefferson Road.

Likes Small Rooms. Michael Rockland presented another subjective argument to the board. "I could envision people who would find these small rooms charming," he said. "Some people like to live in small rooms. My own house consists of many small rooms and we enjoy it that way." Mr. Rockland lives at 8 Madison Street.

"We could argue all night about how you lived in New York City," Mr. Sheehan responded to Mr. Chimacoff. "If you feel that way, then just vote against this request." Mr. Sheehan and his architect left the meeting after the Zoning Board began its deliberations. Mr. Chimacoff voted exactly as Mr. Sheehan had suggested.

In other cases heard by the Zoning Board, approval was granted to Willie Mae Tadlock to tear down part of a house located at 29 Green Street, and move a house from 27½ Green Street to No. 29, and attach it to the remaining portion of the house there. Permission was also granted to Nellie Hunt and Sarah Staats to convert a one-family dwelling at 33 William Street to a two-family dwelling.

Resolution for Independence. Stockton and Witherspoon arrived at the Philadelphia State House on the afternoon of Monday, July 1, in the middle of a crashing thunderstorm. John Adams had just finished a stirring speech advocating the adoption of the Lee resolution "That these United States are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved." Lee's resolution also incorporated proposals for forming foreign alliances and for devising a plan of confederation which would be submitted to the Colonies for their approval.

In the debates that day, John Dickinson of Pennsylvania opposed the resolution, not so much for what it said as for its timing. Dr. Witherspoon, undoubtedly a prepossessing figure in his clerical garb, rose to observe "that some colonies are ripe for independence, some colonies are rotten for the want of it." The vote stood at nine colonies (New Jersey included this time) for; Pennsylvania and South Carolina against; Delaware divided, and New York abstaining, when Edward Rutledge of South Carolina, hinting that his colony might change its stand, moved that the vote be retaken the next day.

Tuesday, July 2, 1776, was an eventful day. South Carolina, swayed by Rutledge, reversed its position. Accepting the inevitable, the two members of the Pennsylvania delegation most opposed to the resolution, Robert Morris and John Dickinson, were intentionally absent, so that with its other delegates polled at three to two in favor, Pennsylvania's one vote under the unit vote rule backed the resolution.

The most dramatic moment came when Caesar Rodney, Delaware's third delegate, galloped up to the state house after a harrowing 80-mile night ride from Dover through a thunderstorm, and broke Delaware's tie. Home on military assignment, he had received an urgent plea from the Delaware member who had voted for independence, Thomas McLean, to rush to Philadelphia.

The Great Decision. In the final vote, 12 colonies approved Lee's resolution for independence, and New York still abstained for lack of instruction from its assembly. John Adams wrote his wife, "The Second Day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the History of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary Festival."

John Witherspoon
 A Fiery College President

On the next two days the Continental Congress turned its attention to the wording of the Declaration of Independence. This document had been drafted by Thomas Jefferson, a member of the five-man committee appointed by the Congress prior to the three-week adjournment to prepare a statement in the event the Lee resolution was passed.

Members argued nearly every phrase of Jefferson's original draft until it was ready for another vote on July 4. Although Secretary of Congress Charles Thompson kept notes only on motions and not on discussion, it is thought that Witherspoon was responsible, for instance, for the deletion of a reference to Scottish mercenaries and for the insistence on the phrase "with a firm Reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence."

The Declaration of Independence was finally rushed off to the printer late in the evening of July 4. Contrary to popular belief, it bore only the signature of John Hancock, president, and Charles Thompson, secretary. On July 8 a crowd in Trenton gathered for a reading of the Declaration, and the Pennsylvania Packet reported that in Princeton, "Nassau Hall was grandly illuminated and INDEPENDENCY proclaimed under a triple volley of musketry, and universal acclamation for the prosperity of the UNITED STATES."

Declaration Becomes Unanimous. New York finally received instructions from its assembly and on July 15 voted to accept the Declaration. Thus when Congress ordered a copy to be engrossed on parchment for the official signatures, the heading could now read "The Unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America."

The actual signing took place on August 2 when 50 of the 56 eventual signers affixed their names by state, starting with the northernmost and preceding south, in the same way the roll was called. The signed parchment was not made public until January 8, 1777, following the victories at Trenton and Princeton, because Congress sought to protect the signers from British retaliation for as long as possible.

The three signers from this area did indeed suffer the consequences of an act which was treasonable if the war was not won. Marauding British troops ransacked Morven, the home of Richard Stockton, occupied Nassau Hall and destroyed most of Witherspoon's personal library. Stockton was taken prisoner as he attempted to head for Philadelphia and was reportedly beaten and starved before being released in a prisoner exchange arranged by Witherspoon. The experience left him in poor health, and he remained an invalid at Morven until his death in February, 1781.

Hessian soldiers overran Hart's farm, his family scattered to shelter with neighbors and Hart himself fled to hide in caves in the Sourland Mountains. When he emerged it was to find his wife dead, his farm ruined, his timber destroyed and his livestock butchered. Crushed by these personal disasters, he died in May of 1779.

Richard Stockton
 An Outstanding Lawyer

Francis Hopkinson went on to design the American flag, and Abraham Clark took part in the Constitutional Convention, opposing the adoption of the Constitution until it incorporated the Bill of Rights. It is, however, for their role in the birth of the nation 200 years ago that these men are principally remembered.

240 Luxury Apartments in Lawrence Township Win Zoning Appeal $25 Million Residential Village Planned in Montgomery Township

One of the last roadblocks to construction of 240 luxury apartments on the Princeton Pike in Lawrence Township was struck down this week by Superior Court Judge George Y. Schoch. He ruled that an amendment to the Township's zoning ordinance, adopted by council in 1974, was consistent with the township master plan and did not constitute "spot zoning."

The developers of the apartments, which are planned for a 30-acre site near Fackler Road, said that construction should begin soon. The apartments are expected to be rented at rates of $400 to $600 a month.

John S. Kramer, who lives near the proposed apartment site, had argued, through his lawyer, that the zoning ordinance amendment is inconsistent because it allows multi-family construction in an area devoted to single-family homes and rural farms. Judge Schoch ruled that the Township's planning board had studied the amendment and its ramifications properly before recommending to the Lawrence Council that it adopt the measure.

Another luxury housing development that is moving forward, though not yet to the point of the Lawrence apartments, is a proposed $25 million residential village proposed for a 250-acre site bordered by Province Line Road and Cherry Valley Road, in the southwest corner of Montgomery Township.

The developer is the Great Road Land Company, a group of five Princetonians headed by builder William Augustine. The other four have not yet made public their names. The company has been discussing its plans informally with officials in Montgomery and expects to file a formal application for preliminary approval late this year or early next year.

Low Density. Though not sure yet of exactly what timetable his company would follow with the board of adjustment, Mr. Augustine was optimistic about the chances of gaining approval. "Most people have been quite favorable," he said. "It is a very low density project."

The current plans are to build a total of 250 townhouses and detached "cottages," on the 250-acre site. The housing would be concentrated on about 160 of the 250 acres, the remainder would be open. The average townhouse development, Mr. Augustine said, involves six to twelve units per acre.

The units would be sold for as much as $100,000 apiece, he said, and would have either one or two bedrooms. The community would be geared toward older people with grown children who have no need for larger homes. It would include its own private maintenance and security forces, and would be served by a private road running from the Great Road to Rolling Hill Road.

The development would have none of the additional amenities, such as clubhouse, swimming pool, or recreational facilities, associated with condominium developments. "It won't be typical," said Mr. Augustine.

Legal Questions. More than half the current property is now zoned R-2. The rest is R-1. Some zoning changes would be necessary before the development could be given approval. Perhaps the biggest obstacle to that approval is a suit filed against Montgomery Township by Montgomery Associates, a firm that hopes to construct about 780 apartments on the Pine Brae club site in the township.

Montgomery officials do not want to be accused of "spot zoning" as their counterparts in Lawrence were.

If Mr. Augustine and his company can clear the potential legal impediments, they hope to begin construction by the beginning of next year. Construction would be carried forward gradually, with current plans calling for about 50 units a year for a period of five years.

Current plans also call for about 50 individual cottages, and about 200 double units, attached by a common garage wall. "The ratio could change commensurate with our demand experience," said Mr. Augustine.

All construction, he added, would take place in a wooded, secluded area away from existing homes and roads.

FENWICK BILL SIGNED
To Monitor Helsinki Accord.

A bill originally introduced by Rep. Millicent Fenwick and Senator Clifford P. Case and signed by President Ford has established a Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Rep. Fenwick said, "The commission will monitor compliance with the Helsinki Accord and will encourage the United States Government to implement programs to carry out our own pledges in this important undertaking."

Rep. Fenwick said the commission still required Congressional funding and urged interested parties to write their Representatives and Senators asking them to support funding for the commission through the Legislative Branch Appropriations bill, so the commission could begin operations by August.

Safe Winter at Morristown Followed Victory In Battle of Princeton for Washington's Men

SAFETY AT MORRISTOWN

(This is the first of a series of four articles on Washington's major military encampments in New Jersey.)

One branch of the fork in the road at Kingston led to New Brunswick, filled with British supplies, perhaps even chests containing gold for the King's regiments. Northward, beyond the Watchung Mountains, lay Morristown.

General Washington scarcely hesitated as he led his troops out of Princeton on January 3, 1777. He turned north. Neither supplies nor gold matched the safety to be found at Morristown.

These American soldiers marched with pride. Within two weeks they had twice outfought and outwitted the enemy at Trenton and had just beaten the British at Nassau Hall in Princeton. It was time to rest.

Washington recognized the assets of Morristown. He knew of strong sympathetic feelings there, led by the ardent father-son patriots, Colonel Jacob Ford, Sr. and Colonel Ford, Jr. Scores of iron furnaces and forges blazed in the Morris County hills.

The Watchung Mountains were a natural military fortress. Most important was the powder mill that Jacob Ford, Jr. and others had built beside the Whippany River near the eastern edge of town. Gun powder was America's most precious need.

Disaster Strikes. The first Americans reached Morristown on January 6 and wearily set up rude camps on the hills along a line reaching from near present-day Madison almost to Mendham. Washington secured lodgings in the Arnold Tavern on the north side of the village green, within sight of the village's 75 "handsome and well-built" houses that surrounded the Presbyterian meeting house.

Disaster struck quickly. Jacob Ford, Jr. died suddenly of a fever on January 11, five days after Washington's arrival. Eight days later came the unexpected demise of Jacob Ford, Sr. Deprived shockingly of his two staunchest Morristown supporters, Washington saw things grow worse.

A ravaging smallpox epidemic struck that winter. Hundreds of soldiers died. Often they were hurriedly in unmarked graves. No exact record of military deaths is known, but the Presbyterian parish roll listed 205 deaths of members that winter. Two hundred deaths in a church area of scarcely more than 500 people is a tragedy almost beyond comprehension.

Washington struck boldly at the epidemic. He ordered soldiers and civilians alike inoculated against smallpox.

Bureaucratic Blundering.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
In case any Princeton homeowner has the misfortune to find his sewer-line blocked at the end where it joins the main sewer, let me warn him of what he may expect.

If he calls the Sewer Operating Committee to tell them that their sewer-stem to the main trunk line is blocked, they are likely to reply, "Oh really?" The homeowner, anxious to have the use of his sewer, may find this remark unhelpful and think of his recently arrived tax bill with something called "sewer tax" marked on it. He should prepare himself for the worst.

From his friends and neighbors he may learn that when the Joint Sewer Committee installed the main trunk line along the Kingston Road in the early 1930s the contractor built terra cotta stems to which the homeowners had to connect. But when he inquires of the present Sewer Operating Committee whether they will pay for the necessary replacement of one of these cracked, root-clogged terra cotta stems, he will find that it has become his responsibility.

He will have to call the plumber with the backhoe and dig up the pipe. At this point he may wonder just where to begin digging — how far from the man-hole is his connection? Let him wonder. Let him dig along his lot line until he finds it. "But," he says, "the Sewer Operating Committee must have a blueprint showing the footage from the man-hole."

Though he phones them every half hour, the Sewer Operating Committee is unlikely to find any information about his sewer. There is no mention by them of such a blueprint, or is any way suggested to locate the join to the trunk line. Eventually the backhoe and the plumber arrive and begin to dig, first trying to locate the water pipes so as not to break the main.

In my case, we had luck. We broke the main leading to my house right away, and while repairing that we just happened to come across the sewer line, my part of which is cast iron pipe, not terra cotta. Still, if only we could have been told just where to dig for the sewer, we needn't have broken my water main.

Now that all is repaired, the Sewer Operating Committee tells me that of course they have a blueprint with my entry to the trunk line marked. They are not secretive, and I or my plumber may look at the blueprint any time. Do you find this curious? I hope you other homeowner-taxpayers won't have sewer trouble, but in case you do, you'll know what to anticipate.

Dog Owners Thankful.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
I would like to use "Town Topics" to thank the two Princeton Hospital volunteers (at least I assume they were — they were two very nice women dressed in pink and white uniforms) who came to the aid of our dog at the Hospital Fete.

We had walked to the Fete, and the heat was rather much for him and he collapsed under a car parked near the auction tent. One of the ladies tried to get our dog to drink, but he was panting too hard and refused the water. She then rubbed him down with water and bathed his paws and tried to force water into his mouth.

We followed her advice to let him rest and cool off, and then slowly made our way home, pausing many times under trees for the three of us to cool off. Our dog recovered from the heat, and we really appreciate the concern shown him by the two volunteers.

Your being able to write the story (June 17) of school regionalization without mentioning Citizens for Borough Schools must remind those who labored to get out the affirmative vote of a reasonable analogy. Princeton Firm Will Film 'Operation Sail' On July 4 with Special 360-Degree Camera

When the "tall ships" lead the parade of 225 sailing vessels from 30 countries up the Hudson River in a sea-going salute to the Bicentennial on Sunday, July 4, a Princeton firm which has been authorized to make a multi-media presentation of the event will be ensconced in prime locations from which to record the panorama on special cameras.

Conceived by Robert L. Cope, former minister of the Unitarian Church, to recapture an event which in all likelihood will never be repeated and to dramatize its theme of the brotherhood of sailors, the project has been enthusiastically taken up by Wren Associates of 145 Witherspoon Street for whom he has worked since March as an account executive.

Founded by Karl Faller and Joe Hovanic, Wren Associates has been in the business for the past five years of making multi-media shows for such blue-chip companies as IBM, Johnson and Johnson, Pan American and ITT and for exhibits in museums such as the Whitney Museum in New York, the National Gallery in Washington, D.C. and the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Operation Sail, as the event

is known, will bring the largest fleet of sailing ships the world has seen in one place since the days when clippers and men o' war dominated the seas. Among its many media techniques, Wren Associates has a one-of-a-kind 360-degree camera and process which projects the circular image around the viewer onto a 12-foot high screen. It seemed a natural to Mr. Cope to use this "Circlescan" camera and projection system as one way to recapturing the July 4 spectacle.

According to Mr. Faller, Wren Associates personnel, including the optometrist Dr. Eugene Trachtman from Red Bank who developed the camera and who is one of the Wren Associates, will be atop Castle William in Governor's Island filming the event on 70 mm. color film. Other personnel using large format cameras and perhaps movie cameras will be on top of Stevens Institute in Hoboken and perhaps also on the U.S.S. Forrestal, the official reviewing vessel for the Naval Review which takes place on July 3.

The film footage will later be produced into a show which not only will describe the parade of ships but will also describe how the ships were used in their heyday and what life was like for the sailors aboard them. George Meredith of Hopewell will write the script for the show, and an original musical score will be used, according to Mr. Faller.

Wren Associates hopes to place the resulting show in an appropriate museum, such as the South Street Museum in New York City, and at next January's Boat Show in the Coliseum as a major feature of the exhibit.

Carl R. White

Stewart III, president of Princeton Bank and Trust and a director of its holding company, Horizon Bancorp, will give a talk Wednesday, July 7, at the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting at Nassau Inn. He will explain why "A Bank is a Bank - Except in Princeton."

Mr. Stewart came to Princeton Bank and Trust in January, 1975, from Girard Bank in Philadelphia, where he had been for 20 years. He graduated from Penn State as a petroleum engineer and attended Wharton Graduate School at the University of Penn where he received his M.B.A. degree.

Friends of the Chamber are invited to attend the meeting and may make reservations by calling 921-7676.

AGENCY ADDS TO STAFF

Vice-President Named. Carl R. White of Lawrenceville has joined the staff of Lenhart Advertising, in the capacity of Vice President, Client Services. Lenhart Advertising, 22 Chambers Street, is a national agency serving a variety of technical and consumer advertising accounts.

Mr. White, an alumnus of Rutgers and Princeton universities, has served as production manager and managing editor for Peterson's Guides, Inc. and, most recently, as sales manager for Princeton Printing. He will assist R.L. Lenhart, the firm's founder and president, in the continuing development of Lenhart's client services.

NAMED PRESIDENT

Of Sedgwick Printout. Morris Goldstein has been appointed president of Sedgwick Printout Systems, Route 1, succeeding Charles Melmed. Mr. Goldstein has been with the firm since 1970 serving in various executive positions in both production and marketing, most recently as executive vice-president.

Mr. Melmed has accepted the position of director, subsidiary systems development for the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Company, Sedgwick's parent firm. Other organizational changes include the appointments of Edward Cotton as director of marketing, Richard McDougal, director of production and Eastburn Shelly as director of systems.

Sedgwick Printout is a computerized typesetting service organization providing data management and composition services to the printing and publishing industry since 1966.

NEW PLANT, NEW JOBS

As Bohren's Expands. Bohren's Moving and Storage Inc. of the Hightstown Road, Princeton Junction, has received a $500,000 low-interest loan through the New Jersey Economic Development Authority for the construction of a 20,000-square foot office and warehouse facility. The expanded plant is expected to provide 17 new jobs when completed.

Construction already has begun and is expected to be completed by December or January, according to a spokesman for Bohren's. The firm currently employs about 40 people.

The money for the loan has been raised by the sale of the Authority's tax-exempt bonds to the First National Bank of Princeton at 7.75 percent interest over 15 years. The expansion of Bohren's is one of 35 financings involving $40 million in low-interest loans initiated by the Development Authority. Robert S. Powell Jr., of 36 Markham Road, former Borough councilman, is executive director of the authority.

Princeton Area Churches Plan Special Services Celebrating Nation's Two Centuries of Freedom

In observance of the American Bicentennial this weekend, special services have been planned by Princeton area churches and religious centers.

The Jewish Center, 435 Nassau Street, has planned a Bicentennial commemoration service Friday evening at 8:15. Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt has selected special readings which focus on the theme of American Independence and which are taken from sources such as the writings of Woodrow Wilson and passages in the early constitution of the state of Virginia on religious freedom. Rabbi Glatt's sermon, "What We Have Learned and What We Have Gained," will reflect on the impact of the American experience on Judaism.

Clark Berens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Berens, will chant the traditional Sabbath evening Kiddush. At the close of the service, a special Oneg Shabbat, or refreshment table, will be served. The public is invited, and the congregation has extended invitations to leaders of the community to join in celebrating this important occasion.

At Nassau Presbyterian Church, site of the early brick Presbyterian Church where Dr. John Witherspoon, president of the College of New Jersey and signer of the Declaration of Independence, was also pastor, a special colonial service has been planned for Sunday at 10. The order of worship will resemble as closely as possible that of early colonial times; hymns will be sung in unison led by a "precentor," and the "Singing School," organized in the 1770's to improve congregational song, will be reenacted by members of the choir performing a few of the hymns popular in colonial churches.

Brief excerpts of a famous sermon preached by Dr. Witherspoon on May 17, 1776, on "the Dominion of Providence over the Passions of Men" will be read by Dr. Robert Jacks of the speech department at Princeton Theological Seminary and a member of the church choir. The service will end with communion and a message of rededication by Dr. Wallace Alston, and there will be a special Fourth of July reception.

Trinity and All Saints' Episcopal Churches will hold a joint service Sunday at 10 at Trinity Church on Mercer Street. The liturgy will include a Litany of National Repentance, and special prayers for the nation. The Rev. Ronald P. Conner of All Saints' Church will be the celebrant of the Holy Eucharist and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. R. Cotton Fife of Trinity Church.

HIGHLIGHT OF THE WEEK

ANYONE FOR TENNIS---AND

lovely woods, gorgeous flowering trees and shrubs, a high view over a rushing stream, winding terraced paths, rock-walled garden, and even a dog run? Not to mention a spacious big family house where toplight design and a contemporary feel (particularly in the use of glass) are combined for flexible living, gracious entertaining, and aesthetic appeal. Entrance hall, stunning high-ceilinged living room, dining room, paneled library, guest room and bath, master suite, and powder room are at one end of the first floor, while adjoining the fine kitchen are the family room, maid's quarters and mud-room. Downstairs (but above grade) is "kid heaven." Five bedrooms, two baths, and a play area can contain and amuse innumerable offspring of any age, live-in or visiting (since the floor can be closed off when the "empty nesters"--what a phrase!--are home alone). The location is just right too: a quiet western Princeton area with neighbors close enough for sociability but far enough away for privacy.

Getting enough sleep can be a problem for some people, but difficulty in getting to sleep is all too often a source of annoyance to many. Tensions built up during the day and evening become deterrents to sleep. When you retire, make yourself relax, consciously, while sitting in a comfortable chair. Make all body movements slow and deliberate. Sip a warm drink. When the desire to sleep comes, move very slowly through the routine of preparation for retiring, and keep your mind set on total relaxation. Concentrate on how good your bed feels, banish all worries, and go to sleep.

Completing the evening will be Slawomir Mrozek's "The Blessed Event." Mrozek is a Polish satirist and playwright, whose "Tango" has been produced off-Broadway. The three-act play satirizes the traditional family relationships and explores the extremes which a parent's overprotectiveness may reach, in a household where tradition has become a dirty word. The status quo is upset with the arrival of a stranger who encounters some bizarre happenings and is slowly drawn into the internal power struggle.

SIGN-UPS SCHEDULED

For Creative Theatre. Children in grades one through nine will have an opportunity to immerse themselves in a wide variety of creative arts through the summer sessions of Creative Theatre Unlimited, 33 Mercer Street.

Sessions will be held Tuesday and Thursday from 10 to noon for younger children and from 10 to 3 for older students. There will also be classes on Saturday, from 10 to 3, for those in grades six through nine. The program begins July 8.

Large-scale puppetry, the production of a Japanese folk tale for older students, work in creative drama, sound and movement, stagecraft, make-up, and masks are among the art forms the students will encounter. Students may also build a cardboard environment, make their own slide and light show, or build sculpture from wood or clay. The three-week sessions will conclude with a festival in which the students will share projects, improvisations, skits, and plays with family and friends.

For information and registration call Pam Hoffman at 883-3772 or Creative Theatre Unlimited at 924-3489.

PICKING UP A STORM: Ted Lundy and Bob Paisley lead The Southern Mountain Boys in a free concert at Princeton Shopping Center Mall this Thursday evening.

targets of scorn; occasional actual news clips provide enough irony on their own.

Jason Robards stands out as the Post's chief editor Ben Bradlee, who stuck by his reporters' story when no other paper would touch it. Hal Holbrook is the shadowy informant "Deep Throat."

BLUE GRASS DUE

In Concert Thursday. It's blue grass on the grass at the Princeton Shopping Center Mall Thursday evening as the free, outdoor community concert series Summer Sounds starts off with a "pickin' jamboree."

This season's opener, which begins at 7:30 and ends around dark, is co-sponsored by the Princeton Shopping Center in cooperation with the Englishtown Music Hall and features the area's finest "full-blasted gut-bucket" blue grass performed by Ted Lundy, Bob Paisley and The Southern Mountain Boys. Basically a family affair, the other "boys" are sons and cousins, all widely known for their excellent fiddling and harmony singing. Blankets and camp chairs are from Spokane, Wash., known as the "Percussion-Naut Patriots" stir the blood with life and drum music at Battleground Park.

Next Thursday, July 8, Summer Sounds will strike a bicentennial theme as a troupe of 85 young musicians

IT'S NEW

To Us

LEARN TO DANCE

At Taylor Studio. It must be almost 30 years since Princeton last had a formal dance studio when Fred Astaire promoted one here in the 1940's. This is surprising as for many of the intervening years dancers have been enthusiastically bouncing, twisting and jostling to rock and roll tunes.

Now, however, traditional ballroom dancing is enjoying a revival, even among the college students. This is not to say they are giving up rock and roll, but the tempo is becoming more mixed.

Undoubtedly the Hustle, Latin America's newest dance, is partially responsible for this trend. According to Ginny Taylor it is the dance most requested at the moment, and what better place to learn the steps than at The Taylor Studio, upstairs at 20 Nassau Street.

Mrs. Taylor, a trim and attractive dancer who keeps herself in shape with yoga and exotic dancing, opened her studio last January. She has 15 years of ballroom experience behind her, most of it in St. Louis where she worked for both the Arthur Murray and Fred Astaire studios and then later operated her own school.

Whether you join a class or take a private lesson, the teaching method starts by standing beside your partner in front of a mirrored wall and learning the basic steps. Then there is the training position where you hold hands as you go through the steps and finally close dancing.

Mrs. Taylor says, "I concentrate here on close dancing. I've never taught ballroom dancing any other way. Leading with the diaphragm is necessary in order not to look sloppy on the dance floor. You can read what you want to into this, but that is the proper way to lead."

Rhumba, Tango, Too. In addition to the Hustle, Mrs. Taylor teaches the Fox Trot, Waltz, Swing, Rhumba, Tango, Samba and Cha-Cha-Cha. However, in any class of six lessons it is possible to teach the basic steps of only three of these, but the class decides which ones.

There are 10 students per class, and Mrs. Taylor told us that people appreciate the small size. However, she enjoys a class of 30 because "Everyone gets to meet other people and that's the name of the game - getting out and doing something that's fun."

Fortunately you can take your pick. Either the small classes at the studio or the larger classes she and her assistants will be teaching this fall at Princeton YMCA or at the Perry Drew School in East Windsor.

As to the cost, A class of six sessions is approximately $30 while private lessons are $10 an hour. Mrs. Taylor told us that this is not as expensive or complicated as the major studios where you generally must sign a contract for a minimum number of hours. She said, "I want the studio for people who want to come in to dance without giving the financial part of it too much thought."

All lessons are given at 20 Nassau Street Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings after 5, and in the fall on Saturday afternoons. For more information call The Taylor Studio at 924-4005 or Mrs. Taylor at 448-9349.

TIPS ARE OFFERED

On Swimming Pool Maintenance. Swimming season is fully upon us, and if you're one of the fortunate ones with a tempting pool in the backyard, Sylvan Pools has some summer maintenance tips.

First of all, they suggest having the water tested, and the best way to accurately do this is to bring a pint to them for a complete electronic analysis. This actually includes seven water tests to see about cyanuric acid, iron, copper, total alkalinity, hardness, too much or too little chlorine and the Ph balance.

The test only takes a few minutes and the results will guide in correcting any water deficiencies. This is important not only because it is healthier to swim in crystal-clear water, but also because chemically imbalanced water can corrode filters and damage heaters and piping.

Sylvan Pools also cautions you to remove the water pressure relief plugs if you ever need to empty your pool. This only applies to concrete pools and is necessary to prevent damage created by water pressure beneath the pool.

However, if you have an aluminum vinyl-liner pool, never empty it as this can cause the base to shift. The water can generally be purified, but if you are unsure the best step is to call the Sylvan dealer for help.

Also, be sure to use the proper cleaning agent as different paints have specific requirements. Again, Sylvan Pools can help you select the right kind.

Then as a final thought, don't forget that Sylvan Pools also has lots of accessories - both the necessary ones such as ladders or ropes as well as toys and games for in and around the pool. You'll also find patio furniture, barbecues and garden aids here.

Located in the Princeton Shopping Center, Sylvan Pools is open Monday through Thursday from 10 until 5:30, Friday from 10 until 8 and Saturday from 10 until 5.

Down-to-Earth Notes

What's in A Name? For some time I have had what might be called a recurring dream, stemming from a near-obsession with one word, its real meaning and its frequent misuse. I keep dreaming of clarifying it once and for all and for everyone, a dream most unlikely to come true! Perhaps I can at least prevent the recurring by getting my thoughts out of my head and on to paper.

It is high noon on a brilliant Cape Cod day. I am happily "relating to" a wide beach and a sparkling ocean with many other happy people -- old, young and in-between; fat, thin and in-between; black, white and in-between. (I was going to add male, female...but I'd better let that go!) In any case, we are all, I think, in the true sense of the word environmentalists. That is my obsessive word.

"Environment" (Webster) "1: something that environs: surroundings, 2a the complex of...factors that act upon...an ecological community and ultimately determine its form and survival; b: the aggregate of social and cultural conditions that influence the life of an individual or community."

"-ist" (as following environmental) adjective suffix: of, relating to, or characteristic of. Ergo, I submit that anyone who relates to his surroundings (ecological, social and cultural) is literally an environmentalist! So much for true meaning; more importantly on to misuse.

Other Definitions. Many people label those who, for whatever reason, oppose or delay their pet projects "environmentalists." This even though, as has recently happened, the opposers may be a coalition of such strange bedfellows as the Sierra Club and representatives of labor unions. Other people use the word "environmentalists" when they really mean "eco-freaks", a type that went out of style long ago.

Working environmentalists are by and large very practical people, representing a broad spectrum of expertise and concerns. Among them are scientists, engineers, architects, lawyers, doctors, sociologists, politicians -- even real estate brokers! -- many of whom have never, to my knowledge, hunkered in or even out of the wilderness. Today's environmentalists are concerned with factors affecting the human condition -- health, jobs, housing, etc. -- along with those bearing on the physical state of the earth. They have also learned to compromise. To illustrate, there follow some typical pared down quotes and/or headlines, all culled from environmental publications at hand.

"The social impact of cancer is massive. The direct costs amount to tens of millions per year. This does not include indirect costs, nor does it include the pain and suffering of victims and their families."

"Air Pollution Hits Poor, Blacks Hardest"

"Whenever industrial development is opposed on environmental grounds...it is imperative that conservationists' proposals which provide jobs be developed."

"Winterization of Housing, a pilot project developed by the N.J. Dept. of Institutions and Agencies...is looking for volunteer help in the actual work of the insulating of homes. The Sierra Club has given its enthusiastic endorsement to this program, designed for the homes of low-income persons, particularly the elderly."

Sierra Club Viewpoint. Of Habitat, the U.N. Conference on Human Settlements, the head of the Sierra Club delegation said: "So far, Habitat is marked by a deep sense of the gravity of the conditions faced by vast numbers of people in human settlements."

On the decision to cancel the Kaiparowits power plant project, planned for a site amidst 20 percent of the nation's parklands in southern Utah: "The deep-mined coal of Utah may still have a place in our energy future if technical breakthroughs can be made...to overcome air pollution problems."

"David Scott, Sierra Club NW representative, had high praise for the industry representatives and 'Congressmen who had led in working out the...bill.'"

"Teton Dam Disaster: A Case in Point..." Five years before the recent devastating collapse of the $60 million Idaho dam "In 1971 a suit was filed by a number of environmental organizations...the focal point of the suit was the question of adequacy of the Environmental Statement filed by the Bureau of Reclamation (builders of the dam)...The affirmation of adequacy of the EIS was handed down by the court and construction of the dam proceeded."

In short (you're lucky I don't have my files handy!) I've tried to show: 1) environmentalist is not a dirty word; 2) working environmentalists are much more than back-packing, bird-watching, tree-loving elitists; 3) the word is frequently used to create a dichotomy that does not exist.

I heard a new word for the environmental movement recently: "socioenvironmentalists!" While it does not trip lightly off the tongue, it does serve to illustrate these points.

Perhaps a simpler word might be "patriots," as used by a Spanish philosopher who said: "Patriotism is not so much protecting the land of our fathers but preserving the land of our children." Patriots, preservationists, socioenvironmentalists -- must we be sidetracked by a mere word?

Can't we work toward an understanding that we're all in this thing together, for better or for worse? It could be for better if those who habitually use "environmentalist" as a derogatory label could accept that togetherness and learn to say (apologies, Pogo): "We have met the environmentalist, and he is us!"

TO HEAD DEVELOPMENT
For Princeton Day School, Don D. Cadle of 237 Wendover Drive has been appointed Director of Development at Princeton Day School, it has been announced by Headmaster Douglas O. McClure and Dr. William P. Burks, chairman of the board of trustees.

Mr. Cadle, until now Senior Vice-President and Director of the Investor Relations Group of the Chase Manhattan Bank, will join the school administration on July 1. He succeeds Phillips B. vanDusen, who has been named managing director of Foundation Managers Incorporated, a subsidiary of Sword, Irwin and Co.

Don D. Cadle

Mr. Cadle joined Chase Manhattan in 1969 as director of plans analysis and coordination, and from 1970 to 1973 was senior vice president, treasurer and director of the financial controls group. Prior to joining the bank, Mr. Cadle served with the U.S. Government for ten years in the Departments of Commerce and State and in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Bureau of the Budget, executive office of the president. In addition, for four years he was general manager and director of Amann and Sons, a thread manufacturer in Boenigheim, Germany.

Mr. Cadle graduated with high honors and Phi Beta Kappa membership from Yale University in 1950, and received his doctorate from Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar in 1953. Married and the father of a daughter, he has lived in Princeton since 1971.

BIKE PATHS DEBATED

By Township Committee. Abbot Low Moffat finally has returned to action on Township Committee, but he discovered at Friday afternoon's meeting that his Committee may be less disposed than those of previous years to one of his favorite projects, bicycle paths.

Mr. Moffat, renamed to the board last month after a disputed election in November and a subsequent legal battle, has been a primary force behind the Township's and Borough's proliferation of bike paths in recent years. At Friday's meeting, called to help make up some of the work that has piled up while Committee has operated at less than full strength, Mr. Moffat submitted a proposal which he hoped Committee would approve for submission to the Federal government for demonstration grant funds.

Republicans Josie Hall and Elizabeth Hutter, joined by Democrat Margaret Broadwater, questioned the propriety of spending more money on bike paths at this time, however, even if the Township's share of the costs would be only 20 percent. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Broadwater finally agreed to seek input from bicyclists to determine which proposed routes, if any, should be pursued at this time.

The two Committeewomen were asked to report back at the July 12 meeting, at which time a decision would be made to apply or not apply for the Federal demonstration grant funds. The application deadline is August 1.

In other action, Committee asked Township Engineer Joseph Hodak to place a high priority on design of a jug handle that would enable northbound traffic to turn from Route 206 onto an extension of Mountain Avenue that would lead to the new north side development of Community Park.

Opens Next Spring. "We've got to have it done as soon as possible," said Mayor Jay Bleiman, "ideally by the time the north side of the park opens next year, so we won't have a horrendous traffic problem."

The north side of the park will be surveyed sometime soon after the Fourth of July, and most of the construction of the new park facility and outdoor amphitheater should be completed before this winter. The park is expected to open next spring.

Township officials hope that eventually the jug handle and traffic light will be replaced by an overpass, so that the two sides of the park are connected for pedestrian traffic as well.

During the bike paths discussion, Mr. Bleiman pointed out that the Federal program under which Mr. Moffat hoped Committee would file its application was seeking programs that could demonstrate concepts applicable on a nationwide basis.

"Abbot has a scheme here for the future that involves a fundamental cultural change in the community, with the use of bicycles for commuting and also recreation," said the Mayor. "If the present Committee doesn't share that

PS WHERE PEOPLE

"Saving for the purpose of being independent is one of the soundest indications of manly character."

— THOMAS JEFFERSON

At thirty-three, Thomas Jefferson was soft-spoken and an intellectual whose fierce sense of freedom dictated the tone of the Declaration of Independence in terms so plain as to command the assent of the entire world and to temper the emotional impact of America's break from England with reason and eloquence.

A reluctant statesman, his common sense approach to freedom included a belief that thrift was a necessary step to personal independence. Chances are he would have approved of Princeton Savings' regular savings account which rewards regular depositors with the highest interest in the land, 5 1/4 % a year, compounded daily and paid from day of deposit to day of withdrawal when just $10 remains on deposit.

When you save at Princeton Savings, Jefferson would have agreed, you gain personal independence . . . plus a better chance at life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

vision, then it's not worth talking about."

Kingston Road Cited. "I don't want to destroy that vision," responded Mrs. Hutter, back on Committee after several weeks in the hospital. "It has merit, but it's not something that we can do all at once. I see only certain sections worth doing right now." The path along the Kingston Road, everyone agreed, ought to be completed as soon as possible for safety reasons.

The question, Mrs. Hutter said, "is how much of our money and how much of the country's money we want to spend on bicycle paths."

"Don't worry about the $6 million," said Mr. Moffat, referring to the total funding of the Federal project. "That's going to be spent anyhow. You should worry about whether or not the Township should spend $30-$40,000."

Mrs. Hall had another worry, in addition to money: "If we do all the paths in this demonstration project, plus the one along the Great Road, we would have 8.05 acres of blacktop just in bike paths. When you take that much and string it along the sides of highways, especially ones that are sloping, it bothers me that we may be adding to the runoff problem."

I
YOU
KNOW

Brought to you
By John Bernard

It seems hard to believe, but did you know a big league batter once refused a base hit? ... It happened in 1942 when Hall-of-Famer Paul Waner hit a grounder that went off the shortstop's glove ... Waner got to first base, and the official scorer called it a hit ... But Waner at that time had 2,999 hits and wanted his 3,000th hit to be a clean one - so he waved to the press box asking the hit to be changed to an error ... The scorer complied, and that hit was taken away from Waner ... That's probably the only time any batter ever refused a hit.

Why are there indentations, or dimples, on a golf ball? ... The reason is that a golf ball, being so small, would be more easily driven off course by wind if it weren't for the indentations which tend to keep the ball straighter in flight.

Here's an oddity about Hank Aaron ... If you arrange the names of all the thousands of men who've ever played big league baseball in alphabetical order, the name that comes first alphabetically is Hank Aaron - and isn't it odd that the man who stands first on the all-time home run list should also stand first on the all-time alphabetical list of all the major leaguers in history.

I bet you didn't know that many health insurance plans including Blue Cross-Blue Shield do not cover children after they reach 19 years old.

TIGHT RACE GOING
In Babe Ruth League, Al Kandell of the Tiger Garage Babe Ruth team pitched a two-hit shutout to beat the previously undefeated Princeton Bank, 7-0, last week in Babe Ruth League play. Keith Phox was the losing pitcher.

The Tiger Garage upset of Princeton Bank, coupled with LaVake Jewelers' first victory of the year, tightened the league standings, with last-place PBA only two games out of first place. LaVake's is sponsoring a team for the first time this year.

Woody Clark fashioned an 8-0 shutout in the LaVake victory over PBA, striking out 14. Chris McDonald hit a triple for the victors and Jeff Bergman singled his first time up in his first Babe Ruth game.

In other games last week, Tiger Garage and LaVake battled to a 4-4 tie in a game called by darkness after eight innings. Kandell, this time playing center field, made a spectacular catch in the seventh and doubled the runner trying to score to send the game into extra innings. Richard Johnson pitched for LaVake and Kevin Cooke and Matt Kahny pitched for Tiger Garage.

Princeton Bank & Trust walloped PBA, 22-2, in its other outing last week. Dave Sully and Leroy Hunninghake split the pitching for PBT. Evan Press, Dave Fitzgerald and Joe Lapsley led the attack for the winners.

The Babe Ruth teams play Monday and Wednesday at the high school and University fields.

RACE TIGHTENS

In PYBA Little League. The standings tightened last week in the PYBA Little League as the Elks suffered their first defeat and Engine No. 1 continued its comeback, stretching its win streak to four.

it defeated, 8-4, behind the pitching of Clark Lippincott. Lippincott helped his own cause with three hits, two of them triples. Peter Nelson banged out three hits and Andy Root and Phil Corwin each doubled for the victors. A triple by Peter Krassnoff and a Todd Breithaupt double were the only Elk hits.

Post 76 began the week with a 21-5 decision over Roma Eterna as Nelson struck out 14 in getting the win. At the plate, Nelson erupted for a pair of homers and a double, while Lippincott also homered and doubled. Mickey Carnevale and Brian Levine each contributed two hits to the Post attack. Dave Allen doubled and Gordie MacLaughlin, Arthur Smith, Tom Murray and Red Desmond all singled for the losers.

The Elks needed eight innings in their second game to defeat U.A. Local 380, 7-5. Krassnoff, the winning pitcher, had two hits, as did Chris Henkel, Eric Larsen and Phil Lamb. Josh Miller's four hits paced the losers who also received two hits each from Scott Ranay and Todd Geherty.

Judd Petrone of Engine No. 1 allowed just two hits - both to Lamont Fletcher - and fanned 15 in blanking Engine No. 3, 12-0. Petrone was just as effective at the plate, connecting for a homer and triple. Peter Versfeld, Brian O'Grady and Jerry McKeller also had two hits for No. 1.

Chris Hoover singled home the winning run as No. 1 defeated UA Local 380 in eight innings. P.J. Young got the win in relief of McKeller and Versfeld. The latter two and Jeff Spike all had a pair of hits while Petrone clouted a grand slam. Scott Lieberman, Geherty and Miller had two hits each for the losers.

Roma Eterna gained its first win of the year, as it came from behind to defeat the Eagles. John Riggs, the winning pitcher, also had Eterna's only hit as the Eagles walked 16. Dave Riemann had three hits, two of them doubles, Mike Petrone, two, and Matthew Hannon and Paul Van Den Heuvel singles for the Eagles.

The Eagles defeated PIASC, 4-2, as Paul Keaney struck out 11 and hit a home run en route to victory. Musky Teresky added two hits for the winners. John Migliore and Sam Lewis hit safely for PIASC.

Comprehensive Swimming Program for All Ages And Skills Provided by Aquatic Association

Only three swimmers on the U.S. Olympic team that will compete in Montreal this summer live east of the Mississippi. In comparison with its neighbor, Pennsylvania, and particularly with California, New Jersey has a dearth of swimming pools and facilities.

But those who jump to the conclusion that this is not the place to learn to swim are wrong. Princeton, that oasis for so many things, is also an exception when it comes to swimming instruction.

Combine outstanding coaches and outstanding facilities with a comprehensive program for swimmers of any age and ability, and the result is the Princeton Aquatic Association.

The facilities include Community Park's fine 50-meter pool and Princeton University's 25-yard Dillon Pool; the coaches are Bill Farley and Dave Garretson of Princeton University, who train the Tigers' strong men's and women's teams; Jeff Lowe, Peddie School head coach, and Lois Hector, director, Princeton Area Swimming and Diving Team.

"Year-round swimming, consistency and regular practice have really put this program on the map," says Laura Hovespian, PAA president. "It's an all-inclusive program; there isn't any one who can't find a spot if they wish to swim."

There are six separate divisions in the PAA, now starting its fourth summer. Senior competitive swimming for those 13 to 21 with prior extensive training and who engage in AAU competition; Junior competitive swimming for those 7 to 12 with some prior training in the four basic strokes and divided into two levels of proficiency; and beginning competitive swimming for those 6 to 17 with little or no training in competitive swimming who want to learn the basic strokes and prepare for competition. Members from Princeton in the latter category are eligible to participate on the Community Park Team, one of 20 in the four-division Princeton Area Swimming and Diving Association which engages in dual meets throughout the summer.

Learning how to swim is a basic instruction program for non-swimmers 6 and up available for Princeton residents only; adult "Masters" swimming for those with prior experience (25 and over) that offers "Masters" competition and swimming purely for pleasure and diving. The latter, for Princeton residents only, is also limited to members of the Community Park PASDA team and prepares them for dual meet competition.

At present there are close to 200 in the PAA program, Mrs. Hovespian reports. "We get more and more each year who stay all year. This is what builds the program."

Fees cover only the cost of coaches' salaries and pool rental. Workouts are held between 7:30 and 10:30 in the morning and at night from 6 to 8 for some programs. During the summer, the PAA is run under the auspices of the Princeton Recreation Department. "I can't stress how co-operative they've been," commented Mrs. Hovespian.

Other PAA officers include Tink Bolster, vice-president in charge of publicity; Dot Feinberg, vice-president responsible for the demanding and complex AAU entries, and John Healy, treasurer. Healy is the man to call for information regarding classes, times and fees.
